About Kenya Pyrethrum

Pyrethrum was introduced into Kenya in 1928 as an experimental crop by European Settlers. This was due to the magic climate and volcano soil in the rift valley and white highlands. This gives a superior final formulated product – a perfect balanced effect of PI & PII of 50%50.

Unique nature

Kenyan pyrethrum comes in more than six different sub-species. These species are grown in more than 10 regions, with different climatic conditions and soil compositions.

Small scale farmers often farm 0.5 – 5 Ha, and dominate the production space. Unlike the Industrial heavy machines harvesting, hand picked harvesting practices enable final pyrethrin's composition to

So, there's a lot of Graphic Designers out there - well... we also do Animation!
